Monday -

Washing day -

A strong soap suds had pervaded the home atmosphere - I have staid in chens all day and attended strictly to my home tube -

A long and hard discussion with Fred - now I wish he could, a rock them
- No callers - Lhas spent $4 for a razor - seemed much pleased with his purchase - I have go to bed early and read myself to sleep -

Chas is a candidate for deputy and they men wanted him to put Mike Lyons as a special policeman - and in return would insure his election He declined to trade Mike is not to be troubled over information of intention by John to raid on the private baggage saloon -

I am glad he would not do so. But still hope for his return - The day will come he is sure

Monday 29th

An exceptional day - very warm for the season this date - The day seemed very much like any day towards the last of Feb. 2nd chilly and gloomy. The birds were not yet upon the water - on this part of the glass I took the early morning ride to Boston and did a little shopping Took the 10-33 train home Emma Smith came with me and we stitched some work for her on the machine. She went off on vacation at 2-30 P.M.

I had a very funny time - afterwards I took a walk with Ella McIntyre and then to tea.
My mother and sister were here in the evening.

to see Leticia on Island to dinner and supper and Mr. I went to the afternoon - He was very telling and we sat out of doors - I said good bye to Aunt Leticia and start to take the car home we found that they were not going across of the bridge lower - Then we started for the cars to Lynn but on arriving there a mile further, on the half hour car had just left and the next we would get to Lynn too late to ^{reach} home that night - much to my disappointment - Since we had to go by car but as I should have decided there as

My wife was full of quills - I decided to hunt up Ellen and find Mrs. Gutter - She was very hospitable and kept me all night for which I was very grateful as I was tired and

Rev Theodore Parker for seditious libel in a sermon of 1860. Later on the war of the Rebellion - the volunteering and drafting of soldiers for the grand army of the Republic of the North with the flag of the Union - women gazed with joyful eyes into their husbands faces and little children gazed at their mothers - this spirit the new sacrifice for right

The addition to the house is not completed - The men have stopped working on it for a day or so waiting for the plaster - The stone job and the stone are nearly finished. Because tention to the subject.

Oct 12 1892

A pleasant Oct day - Last night - a sharp frost - but did not injure any thing in our garden - we are so sheltered - Am suffering from a severe ~~infection~~ caused by the fresh plaster on the new part of the house - It does seem as if they would never finish - the plumbing is partially done and part of the plastering but not enough plaster had mixed causing a delay - Six years ago today Ellen died - It does not seem so long since her release from the cancer and troubles of this world Twenty years ago Mr. Gillingham married - It was a great surprise I am sure Thomas Schuchel Abby going to sickness -

Smiths came home from Lewis & Clark

Oct 16

A rainy Sunday - The house looks desolate - The house-paint is now all scuffed and is much stained with plaster - A mouse was seen running about the kitchen last even seized him - poor little mouse - I was glad to see him disappear - I could not help reflecting on my cruelty in not killing him when he suffered in the meeting-house room -

Re: Charles A. Davenport vs. Abby M. Fitz, Executrix

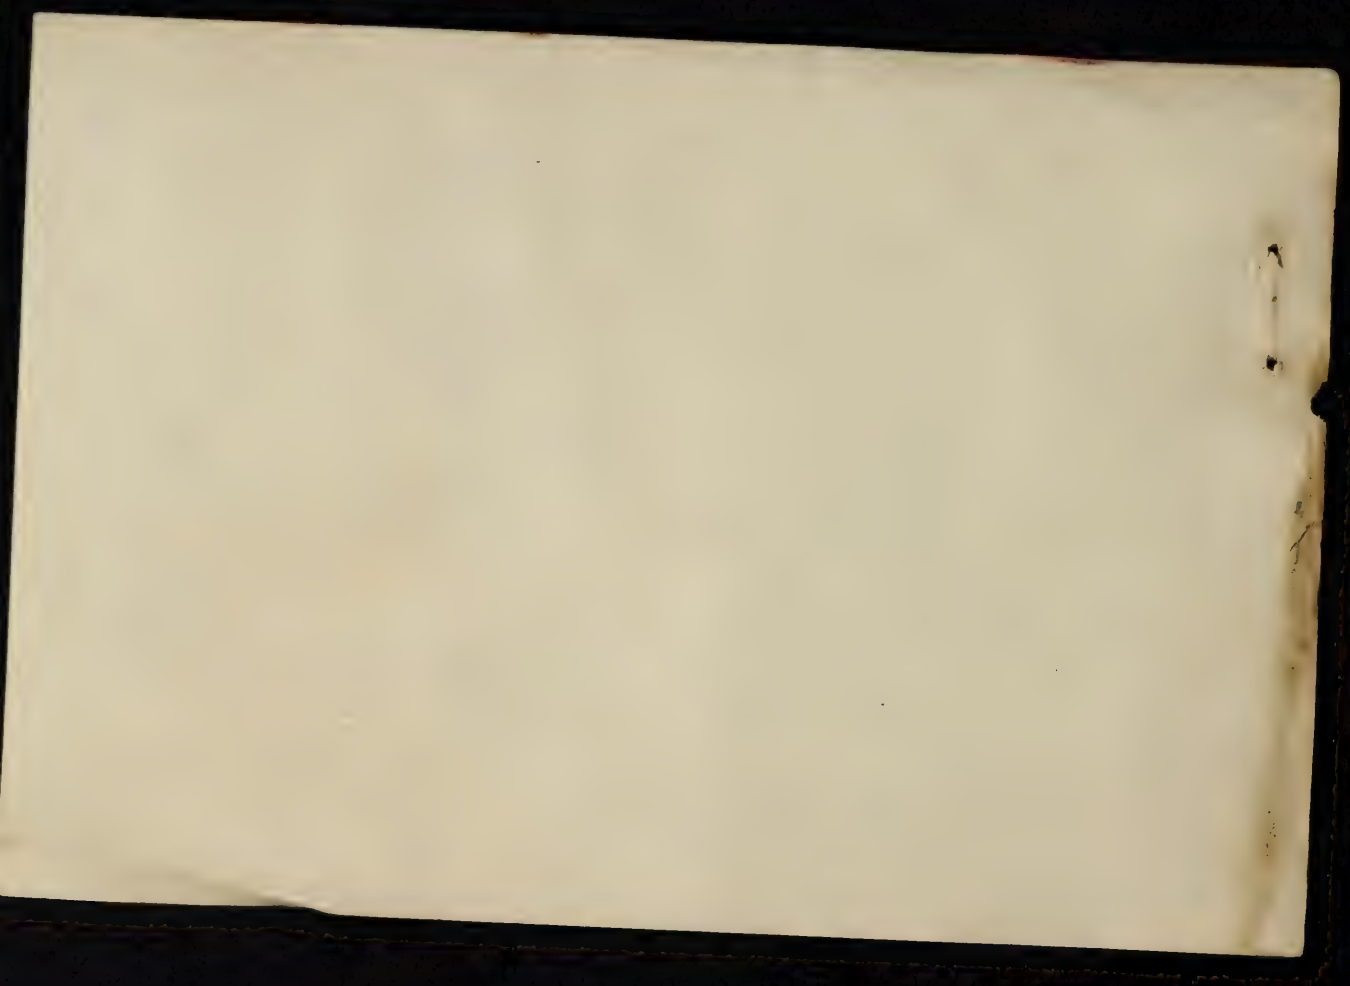

Dear Miss Fitz:

On December 1, 1942, I mailed to Charles D. Morton, Jr., attorney for Doctor Davenport, my check in the sum of $75.00 in settlement of the above entitled action. Today I received from him the enclosed receipt for $75.00 acknowledging the same in full settlement, together with an agreement for judgment in the sum of $75.00, without costs, and judgment satisfied, which I have forwarded to the Waltham Court in order to clear the Court docket.

JMO:M

Very truly yours,

JAMES M. OATES

A SOLDIER'S FUNERAL.

In Candia, on the 21st inst., a soldier was buried. Amid the circumstances of the time, this perhaps might be of little account. Splendid obsequies in cities, the burial of Generals and field officers—these attract the gaze of the multitude, and fill the public prints. Here was a private soldier, foremost in the onset, and shot through the heart at Williamsburg—one of the brave New Hampshire Second—who did not run at Bull Run, but was taken prisoner. Sent home just as he fell, to his sorrowing yet rejoicing parents, who have thus given one son in the strength of manhood to their country, George Clay Emerson, twenty-five years of age. But on that occasion the heart of the old town was touched. For the first time in the memory of men there was a military funeral. The Home Guards, to the number of nearly a hundred, turned out, and the Band, whose performance being sincere and given with feeling was therefore really meritorious, woke the echoes of the hills with the unwonted requiem. The pastors of the two churches—the Congregational and Methodist—took part in the exercises, and the impressive Episcopal burial service was read at the grave. As the sound of the parting salute died away over the forests and rocky hillsides of the town, one would have thought the dust of the soldiers of the first

Revolution must vibrate with the inanimate thrill that shook the earth. But ah, the "dull, cold ear of death"; not all the thunder of the battle-field can wake that sleep. And yet he died well and bravely, as a soldier should—with his face to the foe. When home on his brief furlough, after his exchange at Richmond, he expressed a desire to once more do his duty, and that if wounded, it might be in the head or heart. It was the prayer of a true soldier, and was granted. Daily we hear of hundreds killed and wounded, but how little the dire significance of the fact comes home to us, until, as in this case, some near acquaintance, some friend or brother falls in battle, and is sent home to rest with his fathers. In the Revolution of '76, but one man out of 84, who were at certain times and certain periods in service, died on the battle field. In this later struggle, out of a smaller number, two have died. The people of Candia, as well as those of other towns, will fully recognize the serious nature of the contest. They will give their young men to die, and their money and means to preserve the liberties of the country. We talk of hard times, but what are the times now, or what are they like to be, compared with the endurance of the fathers, when the hard grinding trials of a seven years' war bore down on a people impoverished in means, scattered in situation, and rich only in courage and endurance? This young man's great grandsire, on the one side, was a Lieut. Colonel on the field at Bennington, and on the other, a private in the ranks; and he himself, when we left the town some years since, was a beardless, somewhat bashful youth—last winter a stout soldier; modest yet and now has done all. For what can a man do more than lay down his life for his country?

PASSING OF MRS. FITZ REMOVES AN ARDENT LEADER OF REFORMS

By the death on December 15th of Annie G. Fitz, widow of Charles F. Fitz, at their old home on Common Street, there has passed away one of the older generation, one whose life covered a period from the Civil War through the Great War. Of Scotch ancestry, she joined in early youth the Parker Fraternity which held its meetings with the great leader. Her imagination and interest in reform movements were early stimulated by the opportunities which Theodore Parker made welcome to all his congregation of reading his choice, extensive library, now in a reading room of the Copley Square Library—a bequest to the City of Boston when the great preacher died in Florence, Italy.

Mrs. Fitz (Annie Cummings) brought up as she was in the midst of anti-slavery, temperance and suffrage agitation and organizations, used often to recall the exciting scenes which would occur in Faneuil Hall when Phillips and the other abolition leaders uttered their memorable words for the cause. While at the same time she kept up with modern ideas, she took pleasure in reading her old books, Whittier, Bryant, and others, many of which contained between their leaves, letters and autographs of the Parker Fraternity speakers to Mr. Fitz (for several years secretary and at one time president of that organization).

An ardent suffragist, Mrs. Fitz, though naturally of quiet and retiring disposition, was induced by the leaders to form a society for the discussion of the woman movement led by Lucy Stone and Susan B. Anthony. Mrs. Fitz and another friend acted in turn as secretary and president of the Home Circle which held meetings, generally at houses of the members, and which gave opportunity for the first woman forum at her home. Julia Ward Howe, Mary Livermore (the great temperance leader), Kate Gannett Wells (an early anti-suffragist), Anna Shaw, then a young minister and suffrage worker, and many others gave to a small group of some sixty members their noted talks followed by questions and debate.

While Mr. Fitz was always keenly interested in New England Historical and Genealogical research and for many years took an active part in town government for public welfare, Mrs. Fitz never ceased her interest in the radical reform movements of the day. At the time of her death she was a supporting member of a Religious Association founded by Emerson in 1876, the National Woman's Suffrage leagues, the Association for Betterment of Negro Legislation and other societies.

Many friends who have benefited by her kindness, and a son and daughter mourn her loss.

The funeral was held at the old Mt. Auburn Cemetery chapel at 2.30 p. m., Wednesday, following a brief private service at her home conducted by the Rev. J. C. Sharp.

CHARLES F. FITZ

Charles F. Fitz, former Selectman, and for many years a Watertown resident, died last night at his home, after a long illness. As a Selectman and town official he served the town faithfully and well and had many friends here. Funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

MACHINIST AND INVENTOR.

G. W. Fitts is 90 Years Old and Yet Active.

In His Early Days His Inventions Were Extremely Valuable.

Recalls the Time When Permission Was Required to Travel Sunday.

George W. Fitts of South Hampton, inventor and manufacturer at the age of 90, is a most remarkable citizen.

Born in 1812 of the inflexible Puritan type for which the first settlers were distinguished, his ancestor being Roger Fitts, one of the 68 original proprietors of Salisbury, he still retains many of the sturdy qualities of his forefathers.

He was the son of a distinguished machinist, blacksmith and silver plater, Ephraim Fitts Jr of South Hampton. At the age of 15 his father moved to Nashua, where he assumed the position of overseer of the machine shop of the Jackson corporation. During his three years' residence at that place, Mr Fitts was employed as an apprentice.

Returning with the family to the old homestead, the corporation having ceased to do business, he erected a building equipped with steam power for the manufacture of carriages, shoe machinery and farming implements of his own invention.

GEORGE W. FITTS.

His first invention of importance was a power corn sheller, for which he was awarded a silver medal at the American institute fair at New York. The invention attracted the attention of one Gideon Freeborn, an extensive manufacturer and dealer in agricultural implements, who induced Mr Fitts to locate in New York state for the manufacture of these machines.

He was obliged to give up his business and return to the old home at South Hampton at the expiration of a few months, owing to the failing health of his father, leaving behind a business that bid fair to be most prosperous.

Resuming business at the old stand, he invented another corn sheller for the New England trade, and in later years hundreds of them were in use throughout these states, it being considered at the time the most perfect sheller upon the market.

Among other inventions of his early days was a safety device for elevators, a school desk, and machines for the shoe trade.

In 1850 he accepted the contract for the labor of 20 convicts at the New Hampshire state prison, at that time moving his business to Concord, where he was to reside. He there engaged successfully in the manufacture of scales, picks and other articles for the California trade.

Five years later he took possession of the large shop erected in Providence, R I, for the prison of that state, having the labor of 30 convicts. Moving his business to Providence, he gave up the manufacture of scales, taking up the building of shoe machinery and carriage springs and axles, bolts, etc, which required the introducing of new machinery of his own invention.

He did a most prosperous business for two years at Providence, when with many others he was caught in the panic of 1859, and through heavy losses was obliged to suspend business. Returning again to the family home, he at once engaged in business, preferring, as he says, to wear out rather than rust out.

Until a few days since Mr Fitts could be seen at work at the old shop near his home, perfecting devices of various kinds, among the number being a revolving fan for an invalid's rocking chair. Mr Fitts has the latter device so that it will work, but not to his satisfaction. Other inventions of his are broom and whip sockets, hoxograph for assisting the blind in writing, an automatic inhaler for throat or lung troubles, tool grinder, lamp chimney cleaner, nut lock to prevent nuts from loosening, and boot laster. Many of these inventions were exhibited at the fair of the Amesbury and Salisbury agricultural society last fall by him.

Mr Fitts, who has taken up his residence in Exeter for the winter months, will return in April to his South Hampton home, when it is his intention to perfect his revolving fan.

He is vice president of the Old Home Week association of his town, in which he takes great interest, and has been a member of the state legislature, selectman, town treasurer, as well as holding other offices for many years.

For over 40 years he has been a deacon of the Baptist church. In early life he married Ruth B. Ingalls of Newton, who for 55 years was a beloved and faithful wife.

Mr Fitts in relating incidents of his early life, produced a passport which was given to Thomas W. Fitts, a worthy young man who was on a visit to his sister in Dorchester with a view of buying a farm, which he did soon after. To save expense he desired to travel homeward on foot, his residence being at South Hampton. Traveling on the Sabbath in those days were forbidden without a passport, and this he obtained, as will be seen by the following copy which is verbatim et literatim:

Grafton ss.
This may certify all persons to whom this shall com. Greeting—that I give it as my opinion that thomas W. fitts & Henry Grelle travel on the first day of November next, which is called the Lords, if they Behave the selves accordingly.

New Chester, october 31st, 1801.
Peter Sleeper, Just Peace.

CHARLES F. FITZ, JR.

After several months' illness, Charles F. Fitz, Jr., died July 11 in Boston. He was a native of Watertown and studied at the schools here before entering the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he was graduated as a civil and mechanical engineer. During this period, he worked summers with Supt. William Pierce of Watertown.

After finishing an electrical course also at Technology, he became associated as engineer with the Metropolitan Park Commission, in which position he remained until his last sickness.

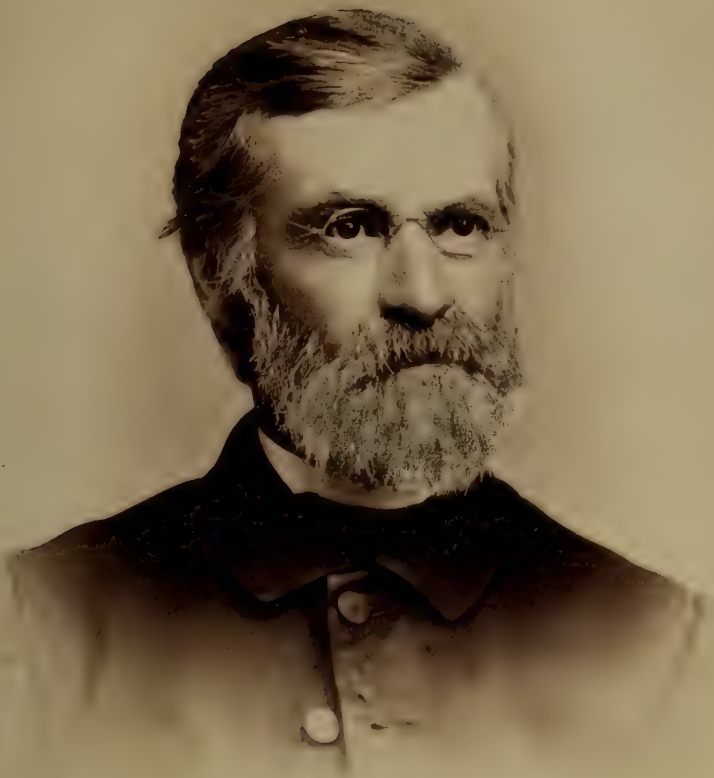

He was always interested in literature and American history, like his father before him, and also in astronomy. Though fond of travel, he had very little time for it, except once, when he made a winter and spring tour of four months through Europe. For many years during their short vacations, he and his cousin sailed their yacht along the New England coast from Nova Scotia to Long Island.

Mr. Fitz's many friends in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles are greatly shocked at his untimely passing. He was well known in a private way for his kindness, honesty, and generosity.

Note #394. Burroughs. It is nearly as hard to trace the descendants of Rev. George Burroughs as it is his antecedents. There are probably many of the former in Massachusetts who know not that this martyr of the witchcraft delusion was an ancestor of theirs. Among them are many prominent families of Boston, Ipswich, Hamilton, Wenham, Newburyport and Amesbury. The late Major Ben: Perley Poore, Abigail W. Dodge (Gail Hamilton) and others were of the number. Perhaps within the twelve years I have been away from Massachusetts someone may have made more discoveries in this line than I did. Respecting his ancestry, the assertion of L. A. Burroughs ("Burroughs Family," page 4) that he was perhaps a son of Jeremiah of Scituate is hardly probable. Savage says: "I can feel no doubt that he was a son of Mrs. Rebecca Burroughs, who came from Virginia" and united with Roxbury Church. At James City, Va., in 1624, were Mr. John Burrows, Bridget, his wife, Sara Buck, aged thirteen, and Mr. Burrows's servants, John Cooke, Nicholas Gouldfinch, John Bradston, Thomas Thorowgood, Andrew Howell and Ann Ashley. Also the cattle that belonged to Mr. Buck's children. The parish register of James City, Va., showed that John Burrows was living Dec. 20, 1679. Anthony Burrows was living at West and Sherlow Hundred, Feb. 16, 1623-24. In a muster of the inhabitants of Virginia, 1624, Anthony Burrows, aged forty-four, was at Elizabeth City. Came in the George, 1617. The name Bridget, rather uncommon in my notes, occurs again several generations later in the Burroughs family of Boston. She had a sister Rebecca and a brother George. The name Rebecca has been handed down to within two generations in my own line of the Burroughs family; v. z. George (2) Ipswich.

*1694. 2. Samuel (5) Baker of Salisbury, Mass., was fifth in descent from John Baker born at Norwich, in Norfolk, Eng., 1598, probably grandson of Richard Baker, alderman, who died 1589. The following is copied from Hotten's List of Emigrants: "April 1, 1637, the examination of John Baker, born at Norwich in Norfolk, Brocar, aged 39, and Elizabeth, his wife, aged 31, with three children, Elizabeth, John and Thomas and four servants, Marcy Alxarson, aged 24, Anne Alxarson, aged 20, Bridget Boule, aged 32 and Samuel Arris, aged 14, are all desirous to goe to Charles Towne in New England, there to inhabit and remain. These people (with others) went to New England with William Andrews of Ipswich, Mr of the John and Dorothy of Ipswich, and with his son, Wm. Andrews, Mr of the Rose of Yarmouth." Savage says they came in the Rose of Yarmouth. John (1) Baker went from Charlestown to Ipswich in 1638. His son John (2) Baker, born in England, Nov. 30, 1634 (died 1718), married May 13, 1667, Katharine Perkins, born Oct. 29, 1648, daughter of Rev. William and Eliza (Wootton) Perkins of Topsfield. Rev. William Perkins came in the William and Francis, 1632, and was associated with John Winthrop, Jr., and eleven others in the settlement of the town of Ipswich, Mass., 1633. Was said to be the most accomplished person among the early settlers of the town of Topsfield; was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1638. William (3) Baker (son of John (2) and Katharine), born —, died 1743; married Dec. 30, 1686, Sarah Fitts, born 1662, died 1722, daughter of Abraham (2) and Sarah (Thompson) Fitts. Abraham (2) was the only child of Robert Fitts, "planter," who came with wife, Grace D., on the William and John, 1635, and was one of the original grantees of the town of Salisbury, Mass. He was son of Sir John Fitz of Fitzford, Tavistock, Devonshire, Eng. William (4) Baker (son of William (3) and Sarah), born Nov. 11, 1687, married Sept. 24, 1713, Elizabeth Heard of Salisbury, Mass., born May 25, 1691. She was daughter of Benjamin and Ruth (Eastman) Heard, married May 23, 1690. Benjamin Heard was son of Captain John and Elizabeth (Hull) Heard of Dover, N. H. Ruth, wife of Benjamin, was daughter of Roger Eastman, one of the original grantees of Salisbury, Mass. Samuel (5) Baker (son of William (4) and Elizabeth), born in Salisbury, Jan. 21, 1724, died April 9, 1801, married (third wife) widow Abigail Crocker, July 6, 1771. Their children were James (6), born July 20, 1772, and Samuel (6), born June 12, 1774. Samuel (6) was my grandfather. A. B. H.
